

SPARKS’
PERSPECTIVE

Ron Sparks
Commissioner

As temperatures soar into the 100's across the state, it is hard for us to imagine an end to the drought we have been experiencing in the Southeast. Drought causes some difficult situations that are not necessarily easily solved. Without having regular heavy rain, what everyone wants to know now, is what can be done to help farmers protect their crops and feed their livestock.

Over the last month, I have been talking with USDA, Governor Riley, and our Congressional delegation, and farmers to find out what can be done. There are solutions, but as we have learned in the past, politics can get in the way of helping people, especially farmers. Everyone wants to help, but it does not always come together quickly. Just talking about the drought problem won't put hay in the barns or keep the corn from burning up.

One example of how hard it is to find answers is the hay shortage. One solution for feeding cattle is having the USDA release the peanuts that are being held right now. They

SOCKATHON HELPS ALABAMA SCHOOLS AND INDUSTRY

Quarter crew paw print

Commissioner Ron Sparks is proud of Soft Touch Hosiery of Ft. Payne for their innovative fundraising idea that pairs socks with schools. The Sockathon fundraising program provides schools with socks in the school's colors, which are then sold in a two pair package for $5 with half of the proceeds going directly to the school. The socks come in three sizes and three styles: low cut, quarter crew, and crew. They feature Elite stripes in school colors or paw prints.

Low cut in school colors

"This is a great alternative to having our children selling candy to each other or going door to door with sales catalogs to raise money," said Sparks. "Not only does it promote school spirit, it helps the sock industry in Alabama. I hope that all of the schools that do fundraising will look into using a program like this one. Everyone needs socks, so why not help out your local school and show your school spirit, too."

"The response to the socks has been tremendous," said Karl Wright the owner of Soft Touch

Hosiery. "They are something our students and community residents can afford and actually use. Our program promotes the school with a product made in Ft. Payne, Alabama--the official sock capital of the world. We are very pleased to be national partners with FBLA--Future Business Leaders of America, in taking our program nationally. With all the nutrition concerns within our schools, it is time for school promotions that provide a win-win product and our great Sockathon program does just that."

Soft Touch began making socks in 1988. The company prides itself on producing a high quality product and even offers a product guarantee. For more information, visit their website at www.sockathon.com.

Three Generations Working Together at the State Farmer's Market

Commissioner Sparks and Odell Brown spent some time together at Farmer's Market Day last month talking about the importance of getting younger generations involved in farming. Mr. Brown has been farming for over 50 years in Autauga County. He and his wife, Johnnie Mae, have been selling their fresh produce at the Montgomery State Farmers Market for more than 21 years. "We have had a really good time here," said Mrs. Brown. "Farmer's Market Day is one of the best days for us because so many people come through to get fresh vegetables who may not normally shop here. Every day should be as good." Mr. Brown has been concerned over the years that most children in Alabama no longer learn much about farming. "My generation is responsible for passing on information to our children and grandchildren," said Mr. Brown. "Who will teach them these things if we don't?"

The Alabama Century and Heritage Farm Program application deadline is August 25, 2006.

The Alabama Century and Heritage Farm Program is designed to recognize family farms that have been in operation for over 100 years. The

are going to waste in storage, so why not use them to feed our livestock? At this point, the USDA will not release them for farmers to use.

Alabama Department of Agriculture and Industries will continue to accept applications through August 25, 2006. Anyone interested in the program can contact Amy Belcher at 334/240-7126 or by email at amy.belcher@agi.alabama.gov for more information.

There may be a good reason for them to not let our cattle eat those peanuts, but if there are no plans to use them for other purposes, it does not make sense to keep them from our farmers who are in a tough situation because of the drought.

Every day, my staff and I talk with each other and with the USDA about how to recover from the drought. There are solutions for us in Alabama. I hope that over the next few weeks, some of the roadblocks we have experienced in the last month will disappear. We all have to work together to help our farmers.

Horticulture Day Tour

The 2006 Horticulture Day Tour sponsored by the Lee County Farmers Federation will be held on August 31 in Lee County focusing on fruit and vegetable production and marketing. Coordinated by the Lee County Farmers Federation's Horticulture Committee, the tour will depart by bus at 9 a.m. from Ag Heritage Park on the campus of Auburn University and will conclude there that afternoon with an experience of The Market at Ag Heritage Park. The Market is a new and successful farmers market in the unique setting of a college campus.

The tour will visit Frank & Pat Randle's diversified farm where they raise vegetables and fruits utilizing organic production as well as a variety of livestock. Much of their produce is marketed at the farm and through Community Supported Agriculture. Attendees will also visit Robert Weed's vineyard and learn about muscadines, including scuppernongs. B, D, & K Foods in Auburn will offer a look at their business of cooking and packing vegetable products for national buffet chains, the military, and other customers. A line of products are also marketed in grocery stores by the company. Lunch will be included at the Alabama Farmers Pavilion at Ag Heritage Park.

Pre-registration is required and is $35 per person. Space is limited. Registration forms may be printed from www.AlfaFarmers.org. For more information, contact Ginger Mullins at (800) 392-5705, Ext. 4293

PRODUCT SPOTLIGHT

R.L. Zeigler began a long running Alabama tradition of great tasting meats in the early 1920's when he began selling homemade pork sausage out of his grocery store in Bessemer, Alabama. His sausage became so popular that he outgrew his grocery store and in 1927, Zeigler opened his first meat packing plant in Bessemer. He continued to expand his business by buying a large number of cattle while on a trip to Texas, originally meant to purchase new plant equipment. This acquisition caused Zeigler to return to Bessemer as the largest cattle owner in the United States. One of Zeigler's biggest accomplishments was to introduce the first vacuum-packed lunchmeat in Alabama which has set the standard for meat packing to this day. When R.L. Zeigler passed away in 1964, three Tuscaloosa businessmen including James Hinton, Frank Moody, and Paul "Bear" Bryant purchased the business. Today Zeigler is privately held by James Hinton and employs more than 300 people in Tuscaloosa. Today Zeigler manufactures a full line of smoked sausages, bacon, lunchmeats, hams, turkeys, corn dogs, sausage and biscuits and even chili. Zeigler can even boast that their hotdogs and bologna are Number 1 in the state of Alabama! The company's website, www.zmeats.com, has delicious recipes featuring their meats which are checked in the company's test kitchen to ensure a quality meat product. For more information, check Zeigler's website or contact the Department of Agriculture at www.agi.alabama.gov.

WHY INDIA?

India...the next SUPER-POWER in trade! With a population of over 1 billion and a middle class of 300 million consumers, which is larger than the entire American population, Indians can afford American goods. India is expected to import over $8 billion in US goods this year. Realizing India's potential for Alabama farmers and industries, Commissioner of Agriculture & Industries Ron Sparks, will be leading an Alabama Trade Development

Mission to India. This trade mission will provide business leaders with an opportunity to experience first hand the trade and investment climate in India, meet one on one with prospective buyers, and evaluate the Indian marketplace. This trade mission is tentatively scheduled for November 9-21, 2006. To register your company and discuss more details, please contact 'Java' at srinivas.javangula@agi.alabama.gov or call at 334/240-7232.

DIVERSITY IS A GOOD OPTION

by Julie A. Best, Public Affairs Specialist, USDA, Natural Resources Conservation Service

Dickie Odom of Greene County, Alabama, has been a very successful catfish producer for many years. "Catfish is still our mainstay," says Odom. "But, diversity is a good option." In 1999, curiosity caused Odom to try something different-Alabama raised shrimp. While talking with a young aquaculturist who was familiar with the farm-raised shrimp production in South America, the gentleman indicated that occasionally torrential rains flushed the pond salinity down to near zero. "My ears perked up," says Odom, "because the natural salinity in our aquifer is about five parts per thousand." The young aquaculturist indicated that the shrimp were not adversely affected by this low salinity condition. That was enough to get Odom interested in diversifying his operation to include shrimp production. "I had a little one acre pond, and I ordered enough post larvae to stock the pond. That first year, we did everything wrong, backwards, and everything else. But, 98 days after stocking the pond, we harvested 1,500 pounds of 14 per pound shrimp. The survival rate was awful, but the shrimp that survived did very well and were excellent. That told me we could do this," says Odom. Now, he just had to refine the process. Odom says, "There are several factors involved in shrimp production; proper levels of potassium, magnesium, and zinc are critical. In the last few years, we determined our major problem, which was lack of potassium in the pond. The weather also plays a major role in the shrimp farmer's life. What about the market? Odom has, and plans to continue, marketed his shrimp on-site. "We sold about 15,000 pounds this year, right here on my farm", says Odom. "We have more customers than we do shrimp at this point. Our average selling size, with head on, is 16-20 count." Currently, Odom has four ponds of shrimp. This year, he grew 26,000 pounds of shrimp. He plans to build two or three more ponds. "Catfish is still our mainstay. At this point, shrimp is our tinkering product. As long as we start with good post larvae, we can grow shrimp consistently here in Alabama.

Odom is quick to give credit to lots of folks. "USDA-Natural Resources Conservation Service (NRCS) has helped with design of catch basins and the pipe headers that we use to guide the shrimp into the ponds. The research and technical assistance from Auburn University Fisheries Department has been helpful. A lot of folks have helped make this work for us," says Odom. The clay soils of the Black Belt region that brought about the installation of catfish ponds now is beneficial in the production of one more Alabama raised product-shrimp. That's another good commodity to add to Alabama's bounty.

Odom raises white shrimp, which have grayish-white shells that turn pink when cooked.
